

Juliet Schor (born 1955) is Professor of Sociology at Boston College.<sup>[1]</sup> She had studied trends in working time, consumerism, the relationship between work and family, women's issues and Economic inequality.

She received her undergraduate degree from Wesleyan University and her Ph.D in economics from the University of Massachusetts Amherst. She taught at Harvard University for 17 years, in the Department of Economics and the Committee on Degrees in Women's Studies.

In 1977, Schor was one of several founders of South End Press. Additionally, in 1979 she was a founding member of the Center for Popular Economics. In 2006 she was awarded the Leontief Prize by the Global Development and Environment Institute. Currently, on the advisory board of the Center for a New American Dream. She has two children who currently reside in Newton with her, Krishna and Sulakshana. Her husband, Prasannan Parthasarathi, is also a professor at Boston College.

Her books include: The Overworked American: The Unexpected Decline of Leisure, Basic Books (1992); The Overspent American: Why We Want What We Don't Need (1999); Sustainable Economy for the 21st Century (1999); Born to Buy: The Commercialized Child and the New Consumer Culture (2005); Plenitude: The New Economics of True Wealth, Penguin Press (2010).